
Canal Building in the Salt River Valley with a stone hoe held in the hand without a handle. These were the original engineers, the true pioneers who built, used and abandoned a canal system when London and Paris were a cluster of wild huts.

FORM 84-9164